More misinformation adds to speed zone consternation

By Mike Williscraft

While several members of Grimsby Council were left scratching their collective heads at the notion of lower speed limits on Main Street and expanding school safety zones, some key misinformation may not have helped matters.

During her update to council, Reg. Coun. Michelle Seaborn outlined several successes of the controversial speed camera program which is part of the Niagara Region's Vision Zero Road Safety Initiative. Among the favourable results were lower average car speeds.

When several councillors pushed back on new plans to lower speed limits along Main Street and significantly expanding School Safety Zones, Seaborn told council that accidents involving children was part
